Ron Bunzl has more than 30 years experience as a highly successful creator of cutting edge poetic cross-disciplinary theater. He is a master storyteller, director and social/cultural activist, who has made an art of encouraging and facilitating others to find their own voices, unfold their creativity and explore and tell their stories.

He founded and directed the internationally renowned performance company Cloud Chamber (1986–2001), The Voices Of The City Foundation (2003 – present), CIRC/US (our circle - community art project), The Storytelling Body (workshop project combining bodywork, story-writing/storytelling and performance aimed at developing communication and collaboration skills), The Storytelling Circle (workshops and events for building bridges, self-development and creating community). He has given team-building workshops, coached and mentored leaders and groups in the business community.

Ron has been inspired by his encounters and work experiences with teachers and artists such as Swami Satchitananda (Integral Yoga Institue), Augusto Boal (social/political theater), Tadeuz Kantor (theater), Jerzy Grotowski (theater), Nicolas Cincone (performance), Steve Paxton (dance/contact improvisation), Lisa Nelson (dance/ performance), Simone Forti (dance/performance), Alvin Curran (musical composition), Leo Bassi (circus), Ruth Zaporah (Action Theater, Joan Fiore (Gestal), Robert Verschuur (Consciousness Development), Lu Langeveld (Voice Dialog), Alan Lowen (Tantric Yoga), Thich Nhat Hanh and Jon Kabat Zinn (Mindfulness & Meditation) and many others.
